SUPPORT OR OPPOSE NEW ZEALAND REACHING OECD TARGET

Let me give you a little background. The amount the New Zealand Government currently spends on overseas aid is 0.3% of our Gross National Income. That comes to around $429 million. The Government has made a commitment to reach the 0.7% Target by 2015. Some European countries have met or exceeded this target. If New Zealand were to meet this target by annual increases, would you support or oppose this?

SUPPORT OR OPPOSE NEW ZEALAND REACHING OECD TARGET - POST FURTHER INFORMATION

Let me give you some further information. The amount the New Zealand Government currently spends on overseas aid is $429 million. The target of 0.7% of our Gross National Income would come to about $1 billion. This year the Government will spend $10 billion on health, $615 million on the Unemployment Benefit, and $619 million on early childhood education. Having heard that, if New Zealand were to meet the overseas aid target by annual increases, would you support or oppose this?
